The Rippersare Mad as Hornets Because They Were Tricked.

The Committeemen Forced to Bow the Knee to the Bunch of Nepotism at Columbus, but Some of Them Stace Refuse to Bow-A Merry War in the Republican Banks.

There is much significance in the nam-"Ripper." Webster defines the word "one who rips, tears or cuts open" and that fust hite it. That's exactly what the so-called Canton Rippers are doing. They are not only ripping and tearing and cutting open but some of them are really swearing. The cause of the reopening of an old sore that had been cauturized with cries of "harmony!" "harmony!" and healed over by a plentiful application of McKinley salve, is the result of the Republican Central Committee meeting Saturday evening.

A little chronological statement of events political may be interjected to explain the situation more clearly. During the winter of 1891 a number of prominent Republicans, including President Seftons the city council, City Scot Tom Turner, Harry Wetber, Lon Owens and others concluded that the mode of governing Canton should be changed. They drew up a oill and ondeavored to have it passed by the legislature. To this end the aid of all the prominent men of the party was invoked and the thing was just ready to be cooked to a turn when a powerful opposition sprung up. George E. Baldwin, W. K. Miller and some others did not favor the bill and went in to kill it. They didn't kill it, however, for they hadn't the power to do so. Gov. McKinley killed it though, and it was done effectually. Had McKinley not interfered it would have gone through. The Rippers gave in "for the sake of harmony" and allowed the bill to be defeated. Judge Fawcett, at that time, showed his colors, though he did it unintentionally. He was approached by Turner whom he told to carry the mesrage to the Governor that he favored the bill. When Tom called on the Governor he told him that Judge Fawcett favored the bill.

"Why, that cannot be" said Gov. McKinley. "Oh, yes, he assured me he was heart ily in favor of the bill;" and I'om brought forth the documents to prove his asser-

The Governor then went down in his pecket and brought forth a telegram which he had received a short time previous. The telegram read: "Kill the Ripper bill by all means," and was signed by J. P. Fawcett.

This action on the part of Judge Fawcett opened the eyes of the Rippers as to his methods of doing business politically and when they came back they bore this fact in mind.

At Salem, when the Republicans met to elect delegates to the Minneapolis convention, Sefton, Turner and the other Rippers had the thing all fixed. Baldwin had decided that he wanted to go as a delegate to the National convention and the anti-Rippers were there en masse to send him. But the Rippers were on top and the antis were compelled to "come and see them," which they did. "For the sake of harmony" Harry Webber, who was the Ripper element's candidate, allowed himoff to be set a side and Baldwin went t the convention.

That made twice that the Rippers had stepped aside "for the sake of harmony," so they confidently expected something this year. The rank and file were with the Rippers, and thought some of putting Harry Webber up for probate judge. He was again kept in the back ground "for the sake of harmony," and Henry Wise was nominated.

Allen Carnes made a good run for pro bate judge, and had be not been the vice tim of misplaced confidence he would have besten Wise. For instance, Cy Conrad, of Massillon, was pledged to Carnes. but at the last moment did him all the harm he could, Carnes' friends asserting that he even circulated stories of a personal nature. At any rate Allen and Cy are not such good friends that they are particularly lonesome when separated. In fact, if Cy were to call at Allen's office he would protably get a jab in the neck by way of prefatory to what Allen might have to say to him.

But the ticket was nominated and it was all from Canton, so some of the wiser heads thought Mayor Reed, of Massillon should be the chairman. Reed's friends thought that would be a good ides, but it was decided that he would not ask for it. Reed and his contingency came over on Saturday pledged for Webber and it looked like a sure thing for Harry. All was going well. Judge Fawcett, with his usual foxiness, declined to seek the chalimanship. He said he didn't want it but all the time he did and was laying his ropes to get it. While the meeting was in progress Saturday and everything was looking rosy for Webber, Geo. Baldwin and W. K. Miller came in. They represented that they were an envoy extraordirary from the Governor of the whole State of Ohio, sent there especially for the purpose of expressing the wishes of the great spostle. They smiled blaudly, threw out a little taffy and then Mr. Baldwin, in his most affable manner, told the assembled committeemen that it would never do to make Mr. Webber chairman of the committee. He said that Mr. Webber was a nice young man and all that but that he wouldn't do. He stated that it was the expressed desire of Gov. McKinley that Judge Fawcett should be chair. man. In fact it was asserted that the Governor had stated that he hoped the committee would acquiesce to his desire in this regard.

Mr. Baldwin was seconded in his re marks by the urbane and very smooth Mr. W. K. Miller, who talked in the same vein, telling the boys how nice Rippers were but how this wasn't a season for Rippers but for harmony which was synonymous with Fawcett.

So the committeemen, thinking they were again bowing to the little tin god who has condescended to remain on earth a little while yet and lift up the benighted people who cannot for the life of them see how in thunder it is that the foreigner pays the tax, changed their minds and voted for Pawcett, only 11 of them remaining true to their colors.

It has just come to light that Mr. Barnaby, a treasury employe at Columbus mixed in and wrote a letter saying that the Governor wanted Fawcett for chairman. This was used to advantage. When it came to making the selection of Bawcett unanimous there was a kick and committeeman who is a Ripper, ripped out an oath and in the middle of it declared that it wasn't unanimous by blank sight. But the trickery and chicagery used by the anti-Rippers is made more apparent by the discovery that McKinley didn't send Baldwin and Miller to the meeting to state his preferences, and in fact the Governor haun't stated any preference at all. The committeemen and the friends of Sefton. Turner, Carnes, True, Webber, and the rest were simply tricked by the opposition and robbed of their honest choice for a chairman. That Fawcett put up the job bimself is not for a moment disbelieved by the Ripper element. Fawcett is training for Congress. He wouldn't accept the chairmanship last year when Thomas Morgan, candidate for Congress, wanted him to take it. Instead he hustled down to Washington and stayed there about seven weeks, when he was most needed. These things are not forgotten and the exclusive Canton ticket with its tricky chairman, backed by local tricksters, will run on the shoals and wreck the ship before the campaign is balf over. In the meantime the Rippers and trick sters are not good friends. They do not fall on each others necks and mix microbes. The Rippers have again been betrayed and they are sore. No soothing emollient need be applied by the tricksters to alleviate their smarting wounds. They refuse to further bow the knee to the nepotic governor or any of his cohorts or ambas adors or his envoy extraordinary. They have been foully dealt with and are hard hit. As one of them expressed it; "All the damped balms in Guead can not heal our amarting scree."

The Two Massillon Men Say They are Law Abiding Citi-

The two young men, Bowing and Alt. hoff, who are charged with shooting with intent to kill, by conductor Jacob Hameach, were released from the jail today, they having secured bail. Michael Smith and August Althoff signed the bond, and they are now awaiting their trial, which takes place Thursday morning at nine o'clock. Mr. Bowing was seen by a reporter today, and he stated that and Althoff, who are step. brothers, are tinners by trade, having worked in Cauton a couple of years before removing to Massillon where they are now employed. He also said that they were not toughs, at least they had tried to be respectable and law abiding citizens in the past. They did not drink whisky on the day on which the sifair took place, although both had drank a little beer. It is stated that they will have many witnesses present tomorrow and try to prove themselves innocent of the charge as preferred. SHOCKING DEPRAVITY.

PITTSBURG LETTER.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.) The time aptly designated the Fall Festivities Season, was inaugurated by the opening of the Fifth Annual Exhibition of the Great Pittsburgh Exposition, on the evening of September 6th.

This pre-eminently successful institution, is very popular with the people of Pittsburgh and vicinity, its attractions are always of the highest order, and never fail to please the hundreds of thousands of visitors who patronize it each season. Its average yearly attendance is five hundred thousand persons during the forty days it is open. These figures are abundant evidence of its popularity.

The opening this season was even a more pronounced success than ever before. The announcement was made, that the public would be admitted at 8 p. m., but long before that hour, thousands of anxious visitors were clamoring for admission. Everything being in readiness, the management anticipated the time set for the opening by nearly one hour. A stream of jolly, jubilant patrons, poured in the great buildings, and those who felt musically inclined, quickly occupied the seats in the vicinity of the band stand, in anticipation of the appearance of the famous Brooks band, and the ever popular Black When they appeared, these public favorites were greeted with tumultous ap-plause by the immense audience, who clearly showed their appreciation, as the concert progressed, of both the band and EAST LIVERPOOL Sept. 6 .- At a meeting of the Brotherhood of Operative Potters last night, James Hughes, president of the national body, officially repudiiated the action of the ac-called workingmen's meeting, held on Fridey night last, as which a petition was prepared protesting against the revision of the existing tariff schedule. Mr. Hughes pointedly asserted that the operative potters had nothing whatever to do with it and stated further that if a potter signed such a petition it was a tacit confession that when all its pleasant features has become an the tariff was revised it would be necessary to reduce wages, which he did not think was the case.

Grosvenor and McKinley Swing Around the Circle. Special to the Plain Dealer.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5 .- Gov. McKinley and other Republican leaders took advantage of Labor day to work off a couple of semi-political speeches in the Hocking valley, but the scheme did not work to the entire satisfaction of promoters. The governor and Gen. C. H. Grosvenor were swinging around the circle, speaking first at Shawnes and then at points in Jackson county. It being Labor day the speakers were somewhat cautious in their remarks: but did not fail to flavor their utterances with Republican doctrines, touching upon the tariff the a of McKinley. The scheme would have worked well for the schemers had it not been for the independence of some of the workingmen, who recognize the fallacies of the McKinley idea and had the courage to make their views known. At Jacksonville, after McKinley had concluded his harangue, Hugh Cavauaugh of Cincinnati, one of the labor leaders of the state, took it upon himself to correct some of the statements made by the governor and he proceeded to roast the Republican party and its hollow principies. This excited Gen. Grosvenor and he replied to the remarks of the labor leader, making a personal attack upon Mr. Cavanaugh, whose statements could not be controverted.

Scout, Has Gone to the Happy Hunting Grounds-A Pennsylvanian Judging Fine Cattle at the Fair. CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—The Pennsylvania

World's fair commissioners have re olved to present their state building to the city of Chicago after the exposition. War Eagle has gone to the happy hunting grounds. He died at Mercy hospital, aged 42 years. He had been government scout for several decades. War Eagle was one of the Winnebago tribe whose village is in Midway plaisance. He joined the camp about six weeks ago. Dr. Raughley was called to attend the chief soon after his arrival in Chicago and found the big Indian was suffering from paralysis. He was taken to Mercy hospital, where he died. Green Cloud, the medicine man of the Win nebago tribe, arrayed himself for incantations and sang weird songs to the great spirit to save the life of War Eagle. but neither art nor sorcery availed and the spirit of the brave sought his fathers. Polled Durham and Dutch belted cattle were brought into the arena the live stock pavilion to be judged by D. H. Branson of Altgres, Pa. 25,000 VETERANS WERE IN LINE. DEATH OF AN INDIAN CHIEF.

> They Pass in Review Before Gens. Weissert, Fairchild and Wallace and Ex-Prest. dent Harrison-Illinois Posts in the Lead-Numerous Spectators.

Indianapolis, Sept. 6.-It was a double Chinese mole of humanity through which the old soldiers passed in the three-mile parade from start to finish. Along the entire route the spectators were massed solid from the ropes next to the building line, spreading over lawns, filling windows and parts of residence and business blocks alike, and in many cases pre-empting roofs. There was no lack of enthusiasm and the special features of the parade were cheered to the echo from square to square. The vice president would have felt complimented could be have heard the rousing cheers that welcomed the Adlai E. Stevenson Post No. 30 of Bloomington, Ills., as it marched along. Numerous stands were erected at points along the route, the official reviewing stand being placed on the grounds of the courthouse on East Washington street. From here the veterans were reviewed by Commanderin-Chief Weissert, Ex-President Harrison stood on his right and Generals Lucius Fairchild of Wisconsin and Lew Wallace, both of whom marched in line until the stand was reached, on his Each veteran saluted the commander-in-chief and the ex-president as they passed.

Major General John R. Carnahan, who has gained fame by his magnificent commandership of the uniformed rank of the Knights of Pythias, was chief marshal of the day, and he was surrounded by experienced assistants in the persons of General N. E. Ruckle as chief of staff; Eli F. Ritter, the Prohibition advocate, whose reputation is national, as adjutant general, and Charles Kahlo as senior aide-de-camp. A 50-pounder gave the signal that all was in readiness for the head of the column to move. It is estimated that 25,000 men were in line.
Illinois had the henor of right of line, following immediately after the chief marshal and his staff. Following the Illinois division came the detachment from the Keystone state, and behind those a large and creditable representation of the veterans of Ohio. One familiar face was missed in this division, that of the late ex-President Hayes, and who for many years had never missed the opportunity of marching on foot with the comrades of his
